ON MARTEAU.

The moment the sole was completed two-thirds of the per ple rose to their feet and cheered and waved their hats and handkerchiefs. Several members of the Seid! Orchestra dropped their instruments and absolutely carried Martesu off the stage on their shoulders. An encore was demanded by everybody in the most impetuous manner. I never saw so much enthusiasm, or rather excitement, in a theatre in my life. The young violinist was obliged to play five times before the audience would allow him to rest. I have heard Sarasate, Wieniawski and nearly all the great violinists, but I never heard such music as I did that night. I was near the back of the theatre, but I could hardly, stay in my seat there; it was so inspiring. I wish I could describe the sensations his music aroused in me, but words fail. You must hear him yourself. I will never miss an opportunity of hearing him. I would gladly pay three dollars to hear him play even if there was no one, with him. I consider the Grand Rapids people very fortunate to have an opportunity of hearing him right at house and for only $1.00. Every seal in the hall should be filled at that price as they have to pay from $1.50 to $5.00 in every other cuty to hear him."

matter of superstition, of incantation, the same as it is by the medicine men of the Indians today. Gradually emerging from such blindness, it was still a matter of bigotry, of folly. What people must have suffered in those days can scarcely be imagined. They were bled, they were cupped, they were leeched, they were subjected to every device whereby their vitality could be reduced and their lives endangered. It is almost a wonder that the race survived.

There has been an absolute revolution in the practice of medicine and in the treatment of human ills. Instead of undermining the vital forces by cupping and bleeding, the vitality is now sustained in every possible manner. Instead of tearing down we seek to build up. Instead of increasing misery we seek to create happiness.

But the greatest advancement in medical science has been made by discovery.

Ten years ago this great truth was realized and the result was a discovery which has done, and is doing, more to strengthen the vitulity, lessen suffering, preserve the health and lengthen life than any of the
